

What is CourtLink?

CourtLink is a research tool for professionals. Primary uses for the service include litigation history, discovery, case management and background checks.

CourtLink allows researchers access the most current court records. You can obtain case summaries, names, dockets, judgments, claims, creditors and charges, stack multiple searches, and combine federal and state search results on one report.

How does it work?

Many federal, state and local court records are available online. However, each court system uses its own unique set of commands and protocols to search court records. To complete a search on one of these systems, you need to know the intricacies of the host system's commands.

CourtLink allows you to search the court records of multiple host systems with one easy to use application. In many cases, CourtLink adds functionality to the search that would not be available from the host system.
